Issue 12 - Winter 2014

With news from India to Italy, 2013 ended with a bang for Boston Educational Services and the International Test of English Proficiency. Thank you for your support. We look forward to discovering all 2014 has to offer with you.

iTEP honored in India

The Indus Foundation, which helps Indian Students find educational and career opportunities, honored iTEP with its Award for Educational Excellence in November. iTEP board member Jemal Idris accepted the award and presented his research during the Indo-Global Education Summit. Read more...

Paper-based iTEP used by university in China

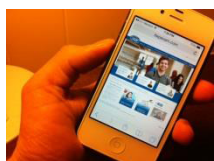

Since its inception in 2008, iTEP has been an Internet-based test. However, paper-based tests still have their place. Fort Hays State University runs a program in China where students can obtain a degree from FHSU. Because this program necessitates testing large numbers of students at the same time, FHSU finds the paper-based iTEP Academic-Core to be the best option for their placement needs. Preregistration makes iTEP even more convenient

A new feature on iTEPexam.com enables test-takers to fill in their information, upload their picture, select the schools they are applying to, and select where they would like to take the test. This enhancement gives greater test security and speeds up the examination process. Try it out...

iTEP website now mobile compatible

Users may now schedule a test, find schools that accept iTEP, and more all from their phones. iTEPexam.com is now fully functional on mobile browsers.

Conferences: See you at CCID

Our staff kicked off the year with a packed presentation at the AAIEP (American Association of Intensive English Programs) Professional Development Conference in San Francisco. iTEP also had a presence at CATESOL (California Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages) in San Diego, TABS (The Association of Boarding Schools) in Boston, and the the NAFSA Region XII Conference in San Diego, which was also sponsored by iTEP. Next up is the CCID (Community Colleges for International Development) Conference at Red Rocks Resort in Las Vegas. View the AAIEP presentation...
